

Sightseeing Tour in Chiang Mai & Chiang Rai

The North of Thailand, formerly the area of the powerful Kingdom of Lanna, with Chiangmai as its capital, has been described as the land of emerald green mountains, undulating hills and idyllic river valleys complemented by its rich history and culture. Ever since the 13th century, it has been known as a land of friendly, courteous and gracious people with an abundance of festivals.

Founded in 1296 by King Mengrai, Prince of Chiangsaen, Chiangmai is the second largest city in the country. Originally a walled city surrounded by a moat, it is a treasure trove of ancient temples, has a unique architectural style known as “Lanna Thai”, a gentle culture and traditional handicrafts. Complementing this are the various exotic hilltribes who dwell in the high lands and add allure to the countryside, promising a great adventure holiday.

Chiangrai, 394 meters above sea level, is the northernmost province in the country. Founded in 1262 by King Mengrai and located on the banks of the Mae Kok river, it borders Myanmar in the West and Laos in the East. The apex of the Golden Triangle is where the boundaries of the three countries converge to connect. Mae Sai, a bustling border town, is the northernmost point in the province while Chiangsaen was the first capital of the Lanna Kingdom. Several different hilltribes live in the province

Mae Hong Sorn, city of the mists, lies in a pristine valley. Virtually covered in mist all year round, it contains boundless attractions such as Fish Cave, waterfalls, Myanmar style temples and hilltribes, in particular the “Padong Longneck Tribe”. Local culture is evident in the unique architecture while the friendly local people display a rich mixture of Lanna Thai, Karen and Myanmar traditions. Charming and tranquil Mae Hong Sorn is the perfect spot for a holiday in paradise.
